by Ross Mittelman, WSG Conservation Chair

During a recent CMC hiking trip in McInnis Canyons National Conservation Area (NCA), our group discussed different types of recreational activities and whether or not they were permitted in the area. The NCA, overseen by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), is broken up into several different zones. Zone 1 allows camping and motorized recreation where RV's and ATV's dot the landscape. Zone 2, known as Mack Ridge, offers world-class single track trails open to mountain bike enthusiasts and managed to that user group. Zone 3 is considered wilderness, where both motorized and mechanized activities are prohibited with the only backcountry travel occurring by foot or hoof.....>> READ MORE

CLASSES

Avalanche Terrain Avoidance:

This seminar consists of pre-course work by students on their own; a two hour presentation by Zoom and a 3-hour field exercise for those who wish to AVOID avalanche terrain. This is particularly important given the high avalanche danger this year. CMC members and non-members are welcome to sign up for one of 2 Zoom presentations -- Wednesday \(1/13\) and Tuesday \(2/2\). There is a fee. The currently scheduled field sessions are at Jones Pass (close to Berthoud Pass). A field session will be scheduled for the Western Slope. Date is TBD.

Wilderness First Aid is now a hybrid 16-hour online plus a 1-day in-person field class. This serves as both an initial certification and recertification. $200 members, $245 nonmembers, and 5 spots each class are free for leaders with online application and 6 trip commitment in 2 years. Western Slope field location TBD due to COVID distancing precautions. More info here and dates will be added regularly when distancing restrictions are lowered.

Trip Leader Training: We are seeking new trip leaders! The free training consists of online modules and one training hike plus wilderness first aid. Self paced online class portion of trip leader training is now available. This is also available to current leaders as a refresher. If you are interested, please contact WSGofCMC@gmail.com.
